

LIFE IN THE METROPOLIS.

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY THE

Fatally Stabbed by a Drunken Man—An Apparently Unprovoked Assault on a Sixth Avenue Liquor Seller—The Man Arrested.

At Sixth Avenue and Twenty-fourth street, and Peter Carley, a Custom House officer, of 164 West Twenty-first street, were standing on the sidewalk in front of O'Donnell's barroom, shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday morning. A young man, whose appearance showed he had been drinking, came from the barroom and asked the two men if they would like to see the location of certain houses. Mr. Carley said that he did not keep a driver. The man turned away for a moment then wheeled suddenly, drawing a knife from his pocket, plunged a blade into O'Donnell's stomach. O'Donnell staggered into his barroom and fell. The man then rushed to the front of the barroom, hurried away up the avenue, and was followed by Mr. Carley, who secured a policeman's assistance.

Thomas Davis heard the alarm, and he rushed to the scene at the corner of the street, and took him to the Thirtieth street police station. There the prisoner said he had been walking along the sidewalk on East Twenty-fourth street. No weapon was found on him. In the morning Klink's four-laded patrol car was found on the sidewalk of the seventh street. The blade with which O'Donnell was stabbed is two inches and a half long.

O'Donnell was taken to the New York Hospital. His condition prevented a thorough examination of his wounds, but it was found, when it was found that the intestines had been cut, and that the wounded man must die. Mr. O'Donnell was taken to the morgue for an autopsy, and can assign no reason for it.

Court later in the morning, he was defiant, and said that he "supposed he would have to hang." He was committed by Justice Kilbreth to await the result of O'Donnell's injuries.

Unpleasant Visitor.
Amandus Schardor, a clerk in Otten's grocery at 444 Sixth avenue, lives over the store. He went to his room at 9 o'clock yesterday morning and found the door open and the lock broken. In the room was a well-dressed man, who had placed Scharder's trunk on the bed and was examining its contents. The man turned as Scharder entered and stood fronting him.

"What are you doing here?" Scharder exclaimed.

"None of your business," replied the man.

grappled him. The man drew a short club from his pocket and attempted to use it. Scharder seized it and the two struggled about the room. Finally the man wrested the club away and struck Scharder several blows on the head. The latter's cries brought assistance, and the man turned and ran down the stairs.

was seen and pursued. Policeman Hill joined in the chase, and after following the man through hallways and over fences, captured him. In the Jefferson Market police court he said he was James Morgan of Chicago. Scharder appeared with bruised features and made a complaint of burglary. Morgan was committed.

Dangerously Cut in Jumping Through a Window.

Last night Frank Mayer, a German, living in Thirty-eighth street, grew quarrelsome in the saloon of William Hauser, at 435 Grove street, Jersey City, and flourished a slushmaker's knife. Detective Doyle was called in. At the sight of the policeman Mayer dropped his knife and jumped through a closed window. His wrist was cut and an artery was severed by the ragged glass. He ran and hid before the police could overtake and capture him. The police tried to stop the flow of blood from Mayer's wound, but failed. Dr. Leitch, of the University Hospital, was called in to give a moral to the City Hospital. The man is in a dangerous

The Wallace Committee's Report.
WASHINGTON, July 21.—Senator McDonald ar-attending the sessions of the Wallace Investigating Committee. The committee will meet here next week and agree upon a report. Senator McDonald says that the report will take very strong grounds against Davenport's illegal and arbitrary conduct in arresting innocent persons without warrant, and merely for the purpose of preventing their voting. Of course, the Republican members of the committee will make a minority report, and that they will say in it may be judged from what is known of the division of opinion in the Senate.
